REPUBLICANS DEMAND INCOME TAX SUPPORT

Will Support It Through Thick and Thin While Democrats Hold Objections to Enforcement.
For good or ill the republican party, judging from the expressions of legislators who gathered at Madison last week for the special session, is committed to the support of the income tax. Leading progressives, who were asked regarding the reception of the tax in their sections invariably said that it was all right. They admitted that there had been some trouble at first, but said this had disappeared and everyone was satisfied.
This statement was for publication. Privately some of those who said the income tax was acceptable to the people admitted that it was causing a great deal of trouble, and would cause more unless something was done. Even members who had voted in the session of 1911 for the tax said privately that if the law could not be radically amended that they would vote for its repeal.
There was a wide difference of opinion as to how the law was taken between the democratic members and their republican colleagues. Nearly every one of the democrats said that so far as their districts were concerned the tax was causing no end of trouble. That they fully believed this trouble was so deep that it would result in danger to republican supremacy in the state was clear. It was said this would be one of the big issues of the campaign.
That the democrats will use it for what it is worth was shown by the vote of the democratic members in the assembly on the Yeckoy resolution requesting the governor to call another special session to repeal the law. On this resolution every democratic vote was recorded against it. It was said the democrats intended to make a fight on the income tax and did not wish it repealed before the full elections.

COLLAPSE OF MILL DESTROYS LANDMARK

Well Known Building on West Bank of River Above Milwaukee Street Bridge Falls Into River.
Another of the old landmarks long known as a dangerous fire hazard was destroyed Friday night when the old mill directly in the rear of the Jeffris planing mill collapsed and fell into the river over which it was built. The building was formerly one of Janesville's largest mills but for many years has been unsafe for occupancy and a fire trap as well as adding much to the unsightly appearance of everyone passing over the Milwaukee street bridge. Another section of the building fell in some time ago and deposited a large number of four barrels in the river but it was given a new foundation and rebuilt for storage purposes.

Mr. Williams stay in Mexico was brief and confined mostly to Lower California, where he spent part of a day at Tijuana, which was the scene of a battle in the revolution last year. Atlanta in Mexico, he says, are in a bad way, although he believes Americans would have no trouble in going through the country on trains, providing, however, the trains were not held up. Citizens on the American side of the line, Mr. Williams says, are strongly opposed to annexation of Mexico, and express the opinion that the government will do sufficient, if it protects American citizens. Along the coast labor troubles were causing some disturbance in a number of cities. Most of the trouble was caused by the Industrial Workers of the World, a labor organization with anarchistic principles, opposed to law, and recognizing no flag except the red flag. Rev. Williams was not in any of the districts in Mexico where fighting is now going on.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS by DAN McCARTY

Just how Jimmy Callahan and his gang of contradictions and incarnate frictions have happened to so successfully hang it on seven other American league clubs to date, no one seems to know, except the Chicago newspapers, and they are keeping it quiet except for two or three columns of space in each issue. Their reason is that it's only natural. Most outsiders think it's miraculous. Chicago's all excited over it. There has been a literary revolution following close upon the heels of the baseball revolution, and sporting pages are quite the thing in Hyde Park and Evanston, where the ladies play bridge while their husbands commute to their banks and offices downtown. Chicago hasn't given a thought to its far famed lake front and stockyards since the Sox opened the season. Even Fletcherism, dear to the heart of the Chicagoans, is a dead issue since Ping Bodie's mental barbarism have become noised about. Everybody's doing it. Gourdmanizing has become a popular pastime. They're scrapping too, over the right way to pronounce Hollo Zelders name. Fashionable literary clubs have issued an edict that the pronunciation is as it spelled "Zyler," instead as it spelled "Zelder." That's important, too. Just think of it.

Why, we wonder, does everybody play the poor umpire?

Tom Lynch, an ex-umpire, is running the National League at a fancy salary. Hank O'Day another former ump, has the Cincinnati club in first place in the National, and Cy Rigler, a well-known manager, is the other day when Dahlen got fresh.

This sounds funny but it's true. Willie Ritchie has a chance to win.

BOXING CONTESTS WERE ENTERTAINING TO LARGE AUDIENCE

Schultz of Milwaukee Proves Too Much For Slinger in Eight Rounds.
—Other Good Contests.

Disciples of the "mummy art of self-defense," as the old school of boxing professors used to call the "Artists" of the squared circle, had an evening of enjoyment at the Auditorium Monday evening when aside from the four contests scheduled, a four-round exhibition bout was given by Jimmy Walsh, the diminutive former English champion and Christian Zanders.

Walsh is one of the cleverest little men of the game and his presence here for the first show of the Athletic club last winter, when he was to have met Harry Forbes, was scheduled much to the disappointment of local enthusiasts. It now appears that Walsh never knew anything of the agreement. That he did not know he was matched with Forbes for the Janesville show, the whole of the proposed contest evidently having originated with Walter Bekersall, who made up the card for this exhibition.

Through his manager, "Doc" Messenger, Walsh came to Janesville last night and sparred his four rounds with Zanders, free of all expense to the local club. If this had been the only attraction of the evening it would have been well worth the price of admission as the clever foot and head work of Walsh was a revelation to the crowd at the ring.

For the evening's regular card Manager Hockett deserves much credit. The four contests were all exciting enough to please the most satiated follower of the game. Two bouts, the Kid Sharkey-Ted Young, and Kid De Munn-Jack Craft, lasted but two rounds, and the Harrison-Nearing contest but well into the fifth. The wind up of the evening was between a Chicago boy named Slinger and Milwaukee's come-Louis Schultz, and it went the eight rounds with plenty of scrap to all the rounds, Schultz winning easily on offensive and defensive work.

Young Sharkey, who, by the way, is a local youth, started the evening's bouts with Ted Young of Milwaukee as his opponent. Both boys had weighed in at 124 pounds and began milling it from the tap of the gong. Sharkey was the aggressor most of the first round and in the second brought up a beauty of a left hand swing that put Young down for the count.

Jack Craft, of Madison, was matched with Kid De Munn of Belvidere. De Munn was still smarting over his defeat at the hands of Billy Morehead some three weeks ago and went after the Madison boy hammer and tongs, taking and giving some good hard punches. Craft got hit in the second round and went down while the referee counted to ten in a most impressive manner and De Munn danced around waiting for Craft to start all over again.

Phil Harrison of Chicago was the next man up with Charley Nearing of Milwaukee, touted as a hard nut to crack, as his opponent. Harrison was a favorite with the crowd, although Nearing had many admirers and the two went to the game from the start. It was a pretty exhibition of clever foot and head work and something doing every minute. Plainly in the fifth Harrison connected a stiff one and down went Nearing. He managed to reach his feet before ten and in a dazed condition when the referee brought the bout which would have developed into a slaughter had it continued.

Then came the wind up. Billy Morehead was to have met Slinger of Chicago, but the Milwaukee "come back" broke his hand in his bout here with De Munn and injured it again last week while training, so Louis Schultz, also of Milwaukee, appeared in his place. Schultz was slightly taller than his opponent who even looked smaller owing to his crouch and method of covering his face and head at all periods of the game.

The boys mixed it freely through the first two rounds and then Schultz began hammering his opponent down. Slinger tried to protect his face and head, clinched repeatedly and ran away from his big German opponent. He did not escape punishment, however, and showed marks of the blows landed. He managed to escape a knockout only by repeated clinches and covering up and crouching, refusing to stand up and take his medicine.

Schultz gave a splendid exhibition of boxing, showed good head work and proved he has a right or left punch that could make some of the hundred and forty pound men sit up and take notice. He won the contest throughout the contest and during the first three rounds knocked Slinger to the floor. While there was no decision given he had all the best of it throughout and won easily.

The selection of a title was always one of Dickens' first anxieties when he was beginning a new book. The now familiar name of Chuzzlewit went through a curious process of evolution. First it was Swoozle, then Swoozleback, then Swoozleway. None of these would do. The Swoozle then became Chuzzle, and there was a new series of Chuzzletoe, Chuzzleboy, Chuzzlewit, and finally Chuzzlewit.—How Dickens Found His Names.

BOX CLAIM VICTORY IN FORFEITED GAME.

After a seven inning battle with the score six to six Ryan's team forfeited the game to the White Sox by refusing to play longer yesterday afternoon. The features of the game were Pettor's battling and Stewart's remarkable fielding and throwing. The White Sox battery was composed of Hitt and Fineran while St. Ryan and Bud Spohn were the opposing battery.

Y. M. C. A. JUNIORS TO FORM BICYCLE CLUB

Younger Class to Organize and Take First Trip Saturday.—Pleasant Trips in Prospect.

All of the Junior members of the Y. M. C. A., who own wheels, will meet Thursday afternoon at four o'clock at the building and form a bicycle club. One hundred boys are wanted to join this club which takes trips across the country this summer and enjoy a number of fine excursions under the direction of Physical Director Hartwell. Saturday at 7:30 the club will start for the county farm where they will visit the institution. Each member of the expedition will take his own lunch.

BRITT AND BROWN BATTLE ON MAY 17

Jimmy Britt has received and accepted an offer of $10,000 to meet Knockout Brown in a ten-round contest at the Madison Square Garden in New York City on May 17. Britt is training every day at the Clinton nat gym and is in fair shape. That he should be called upon to re-enter the ring after being out of the game since July, 1909, shows that the little California is as popular in the ring as he is out of it.

WHY ROOSEVELT?

However much the admirers of Colonel Roosevelt may desire to see him win in the present campaign, whether second thought should convince them that there are two or three very good reasons why he should be defeeted.

In the first place, he violated all moral obligations in consenting to be a candidate, and his campaign has descended to the level of personalities more disgraceful than ward politics. The man he is denouncing has long been his close personal friend.
His influence placed him in the chair of the chief executive, and he was in duty bound to stand by him during his administration. Had he done this there would have been no national progressive organization, or no divided party.

The colonel's excuse for being a candidate is too flimsy to demand serious consideration, because it is inspired by the most sublime egotism. He claims to stand for great principles, which he, and he alone can carry out. In other words, he claims to be the one and only man capable of presiding over the destinies of the nation, at the present time. That is a far cry unworthy of the man who has long been the people's idol, and whom they have delighted to honor.

The third term proposition is also insufficient reason why Mr. Roosevelt should be defeated. When Washington declined the honor and established the precedent, he was influenced by a desire to keep the republic free from any semblance of monarchical rule, and so he sought to preserve the office from the taint of the throne.

If a third term is advisable for any man, why not a fourth or a fifth, and so on for life. Roosevelt's second term gave him the well-earned title of Czar and the third would make him more dictatorial. The spirit of socialism may in time force the nation to adopt a mild monarchical form of government, but the day is not yet.

Some of the recent doctrines undermined by Colonel Roosevelt are dangerous in the extreme. The recall of court decisions is one of them. The safety of a republic is guaranteed by the fact that questions of dispute are settled in a court of last resort from which there is no appeal. Were this not the case, any dissatisfied mob could demand a repeal and secure it, and the result would be mob law and anarchy.

Mr. Roosevelt has been favored with all the honors that the American people could confer. His strong personality won for him the love of the people, in generous measure, and it is to be regretted that he was not content to occupy the pinnacle of fame, and retain the confidence so liberally bestowed.

and regulations, which have long been obsolete, continue to hamper progress, by not being eliminated.
A striking example of this old-time prejudice is just now presented, by the great Methodist church at its quadrannual general conference, now in session in Minneapolis. Among the rules established, back in the primitive days, before the mission of the individual conscience was recognized, was a code which placed a ban on a class of innocent amusements.

Any Methodist who played cards or any other game of chance, or who attended the theatre, was considered a reprobate, and while the rules have long been a dead letter, every effort to repeal them has failed. Every four years the authorities of the church have tackled the proposition,
as they are now doing at Minneapolis.
The success of the final tackle, however, seems assured, as strong pressure is being brought to bear by many intelligent laymen, and several of the bishops have had a vision.

These obnoxious rules have proved detrimental to the church in two or three ways. In the first place by keeping out of the church a class of people who claimed the right to decide for themselves questions of individual conscience, and who refused to subscribe to a code of regulations which they did not propose to observe.

Then it introduced into the church
a class of silly card games like "clinch" and "pit," which contained all the elements of chance and nothing else. To satisfy the demand for entertainment, all sorts of devices were introduced from church theatricals to the summer chautauqua, which finally descended to the level of the cheap vaudeville.

The church has connected with it a limited class of people who profess sanctification. They occupy a little pedestal, above the common herd and assume to be censors of moral conduct. The brother or sister who lives a normal life is regarded with suspicion, and ostracized from the inner circle of the select. This results in dividing the church into two classes
—the pious and the worldly—and the division has proved an element of weakness.

The intelligence of the age demands of church creeds, freedom of thought and action on all questions of expediency, where absolute right and wrong is not involved. The Methodist church has been slow to recognize this fact, and has suffered in consequence. The authorities will do well to cut out the obnoxious rules on amusements, for they have long been a dead letter, and a stumbling block to progress.

There was a time when the office of president of the United States, carried with it some dignity, and commanded wholesome respect, but the campaign of personalities now being waged by the chief executive, and his rival tends to make the office a by-word. This is one of the features of the much exploited "representative government." Under its provisions any man who seeks office from the ward committee to the president, is obliged to crawl in the dust, asking for support. Party organization and party support is of the past and the great primary law stands out in all its glory. Such is reform.

The people who are not satisfied with the proposed screen ordinance, and who hope to find vengeance in a recall, might do well to remember that the recall does not always bring relief. The officer whom the dissatisfied element seek to remove by petition, becomes a candidate for re-election, and if the people endorse him, as they are likely to, he remains in office. Public sentiment is back of the commission, on questions which have to do with public morals, and a recall movement would not meet with public favor.

The state of Iowa drove out its manufacturing industries, thirty years ago, by burdensome legislation, and the loss has never been recovered.
Wisconsin has adopted a similar policy, and unless the people come to their senses the state will lose more during the next two years than it has gained in the last ten. It is time to call a halt and discover where we are at. Many of the so-called reforms need reforming, and quite a list of the reformers should be retired to private life.

When the farmers get their eggs counted, and find out how much milk
and butter the family has consumed, the beauties of the income tax and reform administration will dawn upon them.

When the state university buys
farms at the rate of $1200 per acre, somebody has to pay the bill. The discovery has been made that Janesville taxpayers are to contribute $2,100 more this year than last for the benefit of the state school.

PRESS COMMENT.

Challenge the State.
Fond du Lac Commonwealth: The women of Waukesha have scored a point in the clean city movement and are now challenging the cities of the entire state to a contest. And a contest along this line would be worth while. The Waukesha clean city movement included about everything from house cleaning and street cleaning to a campaign against the house-fly, and is said to have been remarkably for the clever campaign executed.
In order to enlist general support, "The spirit shown by the Waukesha women is commendable and it should be allowed to spread over the whole state.
Anything that contributes to cleanliness contributes to health and economy."

Convenient Non-challenge.
Marquette Eagle-Star: The Green Bay Gazette follows itself on the fact that non-partisanship is becoming the leading feature in the editorial conduct of American newspapers. But

ON THE SPUR
OF THE MOMENT
By Roy K. Moulton.

He Couldn't Tell a Lie.
George Washington, the school books
say, could never tell a lie.
Although he was a married man, but they don't tell us why.

We'd like to know the inside facts
and how it was forsooth.
That George could never get along by sticking to the truth.

If he should run for president and party bosses wrote
A platform he could stand upon to catch the party vote.
Would he say he'd carry out each
plank right in his place, Or would he throw it in the air and pull out of the race?

Would he assure each candidate for every job in sight
That there was not a doubt but he'd get the place all right?
Or would he give up and resign his job right on the spot?
Perhaps he couldn't tell a lie, but times have changed a lot.

Street.....
It was a harmless and inoffensive
little want ad, neatly and modestly worded, we thought, and it eventually jarred our latent sensibilities into a sudden realization of the truth of the old time adage to the effect that it pays to advertise. We made that one mistake. We did not specify the hour. We learned at 5 o'clock that full nine-tenths of the Janesville male population of our fair city is engaged in the lucrative though strenuous occupation of removing lawns of their whistles.
At 5:15 a full fledged baseball game had been organized on said lawn by eighteen candidates for the job and the milkman was essaying

this in itself carries with it the assumption that to be non-partisan the papers must be more outspoken in opinions than ever. It doesn't mean position on the fence or the middle of the road. The modern journal must be ready to strike even its own party or friends if necessary and strike them hard too. That means taking a pronounced position of some kind.

Speaking of Wind.
Appleton Post: Mr. J. A. Follette's whirlwind campaign has not yet developed into a cyclone. But then, there's time enough yet for it to lick
up some dust on Teddy's trail.

ON THE SPUR
OF THE MOMENT
By Roy K. Moulton.

The crowd of juvenile schoolboys was the largest we have ever seen outside of the league games. There was a sparring match going on in the back yard, a juvenile fire department was putting out an imaginary fire on our roof, various and sundry neighbors were appearing in their pajamas on front porches and threatening to call the wagon, ancient and honorable lawnmowers were stacked in military style in the street impeding all early traffic and various lawnmower's races up and down the cement walk were in progress.

We were awakened by receiving in the pit of the stomach a stray baseball which had wandered through the second story and a shower of glass. We hastened down and picked out the kid with the drilled face, for he somehow seemed to show a closer relationship with the job than any of the others and was, to all appearances the true son of the soil.
He took three weeks for the cutting and since then we have had seventeen others and candidate No. 19 is due on the job next morning.

May Days.

The doggone school clock stands dead still.
The hands don't move a bit.
It seems like sixty years until it's time for school to quit.
Some one passed out a good hum-ored sleep.

And wrote "Time Flies," that's all.
For just about this time of year
it doesn't even crawl.

Bluehill are blith' by the ton
And I don't care a darn
If Caesar crossed the Rubicon
Or if old Rome did burn.
The angle and hypotenuse
Ain't pastimes to my wish.
And grammar—thunder, what's the use?

CAPTURED ALLEGED HORSE THIEVES IN BELOIT YESTERDAY

Frank Schmidt and Charles Baker arrested this morning for stealing horses from Goodman Livery.

Frank Schmidt and Charles Baker, arrested in Beloit yesterday on the charge of stealing a horse from the Goodman Livery in this city, were arraigned before Judge Field in the municipal court this morning. They did not enter any plea and their examination was set for ten o'clock Monday. May 13. Schmidt and Baker were arrested in Beloit yesterday afternoon by Officer McCauley of that city less than one hour after they left Janesville. Schmidt was notified by the owners of the livery of the loss of their horse. Sheriff Hanson went to Beloit immediately after the alleged thieves were arrested and brought them to this city where they were lodged in the county jail.

The theft was committed at noon yesterday, the two men hiring the rig representing that they were going to drive four miles out in the country to get some clothes and that they would return inside of two hours. Instead of doing this they drove to Beloit. The rig was recognized by another Janesville liveryman as belonging to Goodman, and the suspicion aroused that it had been stolen. The Goodman livery was informed that one of their rigs was in Beloit and they at once notified Sheriff Hanson, who went with Chief Quinlan to Beloit to cover it. Schmidt and Baker, who the Goodman liveryman said after their arrest for another belonging to O. D. Wheeler, receiving $20 to boot. The Wheeler horse was then traded to Fred Clement for $10 to boot. The Clement horse was in the possession of Schmidt and Baker when they were arrested.

NEW COLLEGE SONG FOR MILTON SCHOOL

Noted Prussian Composer Writes Music and Words Are Contributed by President Daland.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Milton, May 7.—Milton college has a new song, words by President Daland, music especially written for the Prussian music director in the Province of Silesia, and dedicated to Milton college. It will be sung at commencement, June 20. Following are the words:

Dear Milton, our mother, fair Milton, all hail!

We greet thee, we bless thee, our love shall not fail.

To thee and thy mandates we'll ever be true;

Thy symbol we cherish, the Brown and the Blue.

Thy sons and thy daughters fulfill thy behest.

With God and the right we shall ever be blest.

We come now to greet thee, our vows to renew.

And join in the praise of the Brown and the Blue.

Thy honor is precious, thy favor we prize;

Thy name and thy glory we lift to the skies.

Till death we are thine, to our pledge we are true.

To honor thy colors, the Brown and the Blue.

—William C. Daland.

Outdoor Game.

A splendid way to get children out of doors is to get them interested in playing "architect." A stony vacant lot or an open field is the playground, and the children vie with one another in gathering large pebbles, with them making "life-size" bungalow plans up on the ground. This done, the pebble plans become make-believe houses for the little folks to play in. Children seem to keep up interest in this simple game for months.

Make Sunflower Useful.

In some countries, notably in the Russian provinces north of the Caucasus, the sunflower serves other purposes besides ornamenting gardens with its huge golden blossoms. The seeds are used to make oil, which is employed both in the manufacture of soap and in cooking. The stems and leaves are burned and the ashes used to make potash. Last year the sunflower factories of the Caucasus produced 15,000 tons of potash.

The Thistledown

PEOPLE passing through the great meadow might have thought that the two glittering silver dots in the eyes of the old Thistle were two drops of early morning dew, but they were not.

The old Thistle was crying, and those two glistening dots were beautiful tears. They were tears of love, for on that day he was going to say goodbye to his little son Thistledown, who was going out in the world to see the sights.

It was the little Breeze who was to accompany little Thistledown on his travels.

"You will not forget me, will you, son?" said the old Thistle, brushing away the tears.

The little Thistledown nestled just a bit closer.

"Never," he said softly, "you have always been so very good to me!"

"And sometime you will come back to see me?" questioned the old Thistle, with hope in his voice.

"Surely, sometime," whispered the Thistledown.

And then from away off there came a soft whistling sound and presently the little Breeze who was to accompany little Thistledown floated by, looking down below him, how funny the trees looked, and never be the Thistledown! was all he could then, turning, came back again.

"Good morning," he said pleasantly, fore did he realize that the clouds say.

My, how they flew along. And such wonderful sights did little Thistle see. How little the houses were, how little the trees looked, and never be the Thistledown! was all he could then, turning, came back again.

were the same clothes that he did.

And all the while the little Breeze talked, explaining all the strange sights to him.

Now towards nightfall the Breeze had other work to do, and spying a beautiful flower garden far off below, he softly settled down and snugly tucked little Thistledown deep down in the heart of a beautiful rose.

"I will call for you in the morning," he said. "Goodnight."

Away he flew.

The next morning back he came again and for days and days little Thistledown saw sights that he had never dreamed of before.

But the wonderful part of the whole story is that one night the little Breeze left little Thistledown in a pretty bird's nest high upon the bough of a tree and when little Thistledown pecked out over the edge the next morning he was overjoyed for there below him in the meadow was his dear father Thistle and his face was as rosy as an apple.

"Oh father, how do you do?"

"Oh father, how do you do?"

"Oh father, how do you do?"

"Oh father, how do you do?"

"Oh father, how do you do?"

"Oh father, how do you do?"

"Oh father, how do you do?"

"Oh father, how do you do?"

"Oh father, how do you do?"

"Oh father, how do you do?"

"Oh father, how do you do?"

"Oh father, how do you do?"

"Oh father, how do you do?"

APPOINT TEACHERS FOR CITY SCHOOLS

SCHOOL BOARD AT ITS MEETING
LAST EVENING APPROVED
NOMINATIONS.

NUMBER RESIGNATIONS

Principal Helen Welch of Lincoln
School to Retire—Some Positions Not Yet Filled.

Appointments of teachers to the faculty of the high school and common schools of the city were made by the school board at its regular meeting last evening in the board of education room in the high school. The committee on teachers, consisting of S. M. Smith, E. C. Grant, J. M. Thayer, and Superintendent H. C. Buell, submitted the lists of appointments which were promptly ratified. The only other business of importance that came before the meeting was the question of securing assistance for U. L. Manross, teacher in the common school department of the high school. The enrollment in these courses has grown to such an extent that it was deemed to obtain an assistant for Mr. Manross, at least for part of the time. All the members of the board were present at the meeting except William J. Hennings and C. K. Miltimore.

Several high school and graded school teachers have resigned and in some instances their successors have not yet been appointed. Donald McMurtry, instructor in history at the high school, leaves to accept a scholarship at the University of Wisconsin and his place has not yet been filled. Miss Grace Edwards, instructor in English, has accepted the principalship of the Sycamore, Ill., high school, and her place has been given to Miss Maud Munroe, who has been holding a similar position in the high school at Everett, Washington. Valdemore leaves to go to the new Zachary county school of agriculture where he will be director of manual training, and his place is unfilled. Miss Edith Bowen has resigned and will be succeeded by Miss Grace Mount, who held the position up to a year ago and has not been teaching since. Miss Elizabeth Fulton is also to leave and her place is yet vacant.

Those to leave the common school staff of teachers are Miss Helen Welch, principal of the Lincoln school, and Miss Lucy Akin, principal of the Garfield school. Miss Akin will be succeeded by Miss Janet Cody, but no successor to Miss Welch has been named. The complete list of appointments excepting those already named are:

RETURN TO SCHOOL

Six Young Men Disciplined For Disobedience at Owe School, Howe, Ind., Have Been Re-instated.

Stanley Yocco, Russell Parker, Cal Blodgett, Sydney Westwick, Bruce Jeffers and Aubrey Pomeroy, the six Janesville boys who were expelled with fifty other upper class students from the Howe School for Boys, at Howe, Ind., have been re-instated in the school by the head master, and will return soon to their studies. Two of the young men, Cal Blodgett and Russell Parker, have already returned to the institution. Letters informing the young men that they might return to the school were received after they had written the head master to apologize for their conduct, and to agree to abide strictly by the rules of the school. The parents of the boys were also required to notify the school authorities of their agreement to the conditions imposed upon the youths in case they were to be allowed to return to the school. The trouble arose when fifty-six of the upper class students took a holiday against the express orders of those in charge of the school.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Millard F. Hartford.
Last rites for Mrs. Millard F. Hartford were held this afternoon at two o'clock at the home, 404 South Franklin street. The Rev. Hoffmeister, pastor of the English Lutheran church, read the service. The pall bearers were Thomas Hoffman, John Wood, Homer Carr, Ira Crossley, Perry Welch and Fred Seacrest. Burial was made in Oak Hill cemetery. Mrs. Hartford leaves to mourn her loss a husband, one daughter, a sister, Mrs. Edward Lawrence, two step children, Jesse and Hartford of Lexington, Kentucky, and Mrs. Otto Richter of Detroit, Michigan.

Henry F. Pollay.
Henry F. Pollay passed away at his home on the Milwaukee road in the town of Harmony this morning about 4:30 o'clock, after a lingering illness with which he had suffered for more than a year. Mr. Pollay had been a member of Wisconsin Lodge No. 14, and Rock River Encampment No. 3, for many years and was a veteran of the Civil War. Funeral services will be held at the home at two o'clock on Thursday afternoon. The Rev. J. W. Laughlin will conduct the services at the house and those at the grave will be in charge of the Odd Fellows. Interment will be made in Oak Hill cemetery.

Mrs. Martha Paulson.
The funeral of Mrs. Martha Paulson was held at 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at her late residence, 303 North Pearl street. The Rev. W. A. Johnson, pastor of the Norwegian Lutheran church, officiated. The song service was by Mrs. Hammarlund and Mrs. Dahly. Floral tributes were many and beautiful. The pall bearers were Walter Stoddard, Louis Gestland, Henry Gunness, George Hollis and Carl Gunness. Interment was in Oak Hill cemetery.

Robert Geddes.
Robert Geddes, aged seventy-seven, died at midnight at his home, 525 North River street, as the result of a stroke of paralysis which he suffered last Friday just after returning from a trip to Shullsburg, where he had been on business. Mr. Geddes was born near Dumfries, Scotland, in 1835 and emigrated to the United States when nineteen years old. For many years he conducted a dry-goods business in Janesville, afterwards moving to "Platteville," and then to Shullsburg. He leaves a wife and two daughters, Miss Janet Geddes, and Mrs. Waldo of Jefferson. Funeral services will be held at the home at three o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The Rev. J. W. Laughlin, pastor of the Presbyterian church, will officiate. Mr. Geddes was a member of the Knights of Pythias lodge at Platteville.

Mrs. Lillian Buob Behnke.
Mrs. Lillian Buob Behnke passed away yesterday afternoon at the home of her father, Michael Buob, 613 Prairie avenue. Mrs. Buob was forty-one years of age, having been born in this city, March 10, 1871. Surviving her and grieving over her demise are her father, her husband, G. A. Behnke, one brother, William Buob, two sisters, Mrs. Anna Logerman of this city

MISSIONARY WORK OF

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

The Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Boston, Mass., maintains a Board of Lectureship to present to the public the Gospel Message which Christian Science makes clear concerning man and his relation to his creator God.

"Christian Science declares that man's brightest hope for a better life in the hereafter cannot exceed what is in fact the present reality of life." The public is cordially invited to come and hear upon what an authorized lecturer bases this statement of truth. Judge Clifford P. Smith C. S. B. of Brookline, Mass., a member of this Board of Lectureship will speak at the Myers Opera House, Friday Evening, May 10th, at 8:15 o'clock. No charge for admission.

Given Away.

Mrs. Thomas Johnson Smith was being married for the fourth time in the little country church in which she had been raised. The ceremony was proceeding with all solemnity until the minister reached the point: "Who gives this woman to this man to be his wife," and a voice away back in the congregation replied: "I generally do."—Harper's Weekly.

James Drye.

It is reported from Washington that James Drye, British ambassador to the United States since 1905, may quit his post. He will shortly return to England and it is not expected that he will return. For three months it has been whispered in diplomatic circles that Mr. Drye was to be promoted to the office of the foreign minister to succeed Earl Grey. Ambassador Drye stands prominent among diplomats and authorities on international law. He is the writer of many books dealing with history and government. Probably his most famous work is the "American Commonwealth," published in 1887. This is conceded to be the most authoritative work ever written on America.

SHORTAGE OF WHEAT
MAKES FLOUR RISE

Hard Winter Kills Winter Wheat and Causes the Price of Flour to Soar for Some Time.

Owing to the destruction of a great deal of the winter wheat through the South by the hard winter just past, the wheat crop has been gradually getting shorter and consequently the prices have been gradually rising. Because of this the price of flour has been taking a very natural rise until now the very cheapest sells as high as $1.45 a sack. It is also probable that although the price may not rise much higher, it will nevertheless remain up until the fall crops are harvested.

The cheapening of vegetables as the spring advances is very evident on the local markets, asparagus selling at reduced prices, onions which only a short time ago brought ten cents a bunch are now going at two bunches for a nickel, and Bermuda onions have dropped a cent a pound since yesterday. New potatoes are only 7c a pound today after selling the past few days at 8c.

Heart to Heart
Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

A BRAVE WOMAN.

For several years this woman suffered the affliction of a drunken husband. He finally left her the heritage of two small children and some bitter memories.

For twenty years now she has been a jailbird of a building.

Out of her earnings she gave her children a common school education. Also she wisely threw up against a rainy day the dke of a savings bank account.

The floods came.

Inheriting diseased tendencies from the father, the children died one after the other, neither of them coming to adulthood.

The illness, the doctor's fees, the funeral expenses and the two modest headstones in the cemetery took the poor woman's entire savings.

The days following each funeral she went back to her work, her face a shade paler and with a sad smile.

Now she has thrown up a second barrier against misfortune—another savings account. And never in twenty years has she been known to whine or whimper or intrude her troubles. And despite her many sorrows there is sunshine in her face.

One day she was asked the secret of her brave fight and contentment with her status in the world, whereupon she replied:

"It never changes a thing to complain, and people do not like it."

A commonplace story?

It is not! It is the story of an unusual woman who has made an unusual struggle and kept sweet; a woman who, though uneducated, is in possession of an intrepid spirit and an unusual philosophy.

Read again what she says:

"It never changes things to complain." Does it? If not, why complain? It is useless. It is worse than useless. Whining and moaning make things worse.

"People do not like it."

They do not. They have troubles of their own. To persistently complain is to make a bore of oneself. If you have troubles, grin and bear them. If you can't grin, bear them anyway.

The world is quick to answer a cry of real distress, but it has no patience with a quitter or a grumbler.

Let the whiner follow the brave little woman. If need be, scrub the floors—and smile.

Washington, May 7.—Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama, majority leader of the house and candidate for nomination of president, today declared his presidential candidacy was not in the interest of Gov. Harmon nor any other candidate there.

This was in reply to a statement of Wm. J. Bryan in a speech at Chillicothe, Ohio, last night, when he said that he had heard that the Underwood delegates chosen in Georgia and Florida were in reality Harmon men.

CONFEDERATE VETERANS HOLD MAMMOTH REUNION

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Macdon, Ga., May 7.—Remnants of the gray-clad host that set the world a notable example of valour fifty years ago, answered roll call here today in a matter of peace. The occasion was the annual reunion of the United Confederate veterans. In a great tented city erected for the most part by representatives of the flag they fought for generations ago, 50,000 veterans with their "children" and "daughters" gathered today and hundreds more are coming on special trains from all parts of the union. The camp is named in honor of Gen. John B. Gordon, Georgia, famous military leader.

ANCIENT COSMETIC.

In Queen Anne's time the court beauties employed a popular remedy for making the shoulders and arms white and flabby skin firm. This consisted of the whites of four eggs with a grain or two of alum, the whole beaten quite thick. This mixture is then spread on the skin over night, carefully covered with old pieces of linen and removed in the morning with warm water and soap.

Peculiar Classification.

A Florida Judge ruled that mullet were not fish, but birds, because they had gizzards. The customs officials in New York ruled that frogs were fish and must pay duty as such. A game warden in Maine gained popularity by declaring oysters were game and so acquired jurisdiction. And now comes a decision from the customs-house that bagpipes are toys and can not be classed as musical instruments for purposes of taxation.—Florida Times-Herald.

Turned Tables on Prosecutor.

Ludl Pina, a prisoner at Bow street police court, London, surprised the presiding magistrate by saying that his original intention was to plead "not guilty," "but," he said, "when I heard the prosecutor swear on the Bible that the purse contained £16, I felt bound to tell the truth and say there was only £29."

Particularly Necessary.

"In order to become a successful traveling salesman," wrote the manager of a correspondence school for drummers to a long-distance pupil, "you must be plausible and persuasive—especially when it comes to explaining to the firm why you haven't landed any orders."

"People at cafes," said the observing man, "never seem to think how their feet look from the rear. They appear to be of the opinion that you can't see under their chairs, that they are in closed or something. Now, look at that girl's feet. She has tucked them around the rung of the chair until she shows a good deal more of leg than is absolutely necessary. It's cute from here, but I'd be willing to wager she'd have a dozen fits if she knew exactly how they looked."

Old Cushion Dance.

The cushion dance was originally an old country dance in triple time, which was introduced into court at the time of Elizabeth. The dance was very simple. A performer took a cushion and after dancing for a few minutes stopped and threw the cushion before one of the spectators. The one so selected had to kneel on the cushion and allow the dancer to kiss her. After which he repeated the dance.

WOMAN'S PAGE

HEART AND HOME TALKS

BY BARBARA BOYD

The Girl Who Should Beautify Herself

At a first glance, even at a second glance, she appeared a tall, thin, rather angular girl. It took rather careful and close study to discover that her features were almost perfect, that she had most beautiful red-gold hair, lovely violet eyes, and an exquisite complexion. Once, these were discovered, her beauty grew upon you. But it took genuine search to find them.

This seems a rather strange fact in an age when it would seem that every woman not only wants to be beautiful, but makes strenuous efforts to be so. But it is quite true. Glancing at the girl, you saw only angles and unpleasant lines. And her lovely coloring was simply eclipsed.

And this was because she drew her beautiful hair back tightly from her face, and twisted it into a tight knot on the top of her head. This made her look unusually tall and gave her face the appearance of being very long. She wore a waist cut at the throat in just the way to make her neck appear long. Indeed, a hasty glance gave the effect of most unpleasant length, almost abnormal length, to her face and head. When she wore a hat, it was one with a very narrow brim and very high crown, still emphasizing the undesirable long lines. The colors she chose simply killed the pretty tints of her skin, eyes and hair. You had actually to be close enough to her to see just her complexion, her eyes, her features, her hair, and to forget her clothes, to really see her beauty.

Surely such indifference to one's appearance is going to an extreme on one side, just as much as silly vanity is an extreme on the other. One ought not to be vain, but one ought to have a normal desire to make one's self as pleasing as possible to the eye. Every beautiful object in this world adds to the pleasure of life; and every woman, every man and every child ought to be as fair to the eye as they possibly can be, at any rate, as good to look upon as nature has made them.

There is a vast difference between making the best of one's self, in a normal, reasonable way, and being consumed with a silly vanity that over-decorates the person and uses time only in thinking of dress. This girl need have given no more time to combing her hair becomingly than to combing it unbecomingly, to selecting colors that were right than to choosing those that were wrong. It was only a question of a little preliminary thought. And this, every woman ought to give to herself. She ought to study herself to know what are the lines that should be emphasized in her face and figure, what avoided; what colors she should wear, what leave alone. These points once decided, she need give them no further thought. But a woman ought to do this. She owes it to herself. She owes it to those about her. We ought to make the world as beautiful in every way as possible. And we can make ourselves charming in the matter of line and color, even if our appearance is not pleasing in any other way. And we can do this without becoming vain and silly and over-land of dress. We do not need to lose our head about it.

If this girl had tucked out her hair about her face and arranged her great thick braids, coronet-wise; if she had chosen proper colors; if she had worn a broad, low, flower-crowned hat, she would have been lovely. Eyes would have sought her with delight, as they did after they discovered her beauty. And she could have been the same, simple, unaffected girl that she was. And she would have added to the joy of every one who saw her. For the eye can never rest upon beauty without pleasure.

Barbara Boyd.

and mixed with the cucumber and served with French dressing.

In the between times seasons, apple snow is one of the best liked; if the apples are not tart add lemon juice, make ten whole apples, then remove the skin and cores. Add a cup of powdered sugar, the stiff whites of three eggs and season with nutmeg and beat until the mixture is light, heap on a glass dish and cool.

This is even more delicious served with Yankee flat. Thicken a quart of milk with two tablespoons of cornstarch, add three egg yolks and sugar to suit the taste, season with vanilla and nutmeg.

Another light dessert made from apples is known as South African pudding and is said to have been a favorite with "Topsy" on his African trip. Peel, core and slice six apples and place in a sauce pan with a cup of sugar, juice of a lemon and an ounce of butter and flavoring to taste. Steam until tender and add the yolks of three eggs.

Give a pudding dish lined with rich pastry, fill with the sauce and cover with a meringue and serve hot with cream.

THERE is a hope for the man or woman who knows that he has failed. If we are keenly conscious that we have failed, that fact in itself is evidence that we have not failed as hopelessly as we might have done. Only those have really failed who are unconscious of any failure.

—J. Archibald MacCallum.

CHOCOLATE DISHES.

For the lovers of chocolate, here are a few choice suggestions.

Chocolate Balls.—Cream a third of a cup of butter, add two squares of grated chocolate, a cup of sugar, two and a half cups of flour sifted with three teaspoons of baking powder, a little salt; add a half cup of milk, beat well, then cut and fold in the whites of four eggs. Put into cups and steam forty minutes. Serve with chocolate sauce.

An ordinary bread pudding may be made quite elegant by the addition of a little grated chocolate, and one may serve chocolate sauce with it.

Cocoa Fruit Pudding.—Put through a meat chopper a cup of figs, two-thirds of a cup of suet, and two and a half cups of breadcrumbs; add a half cup of cocoa, a cup of brown sugar, two eggs and a half cup of milk; add salt and steam three hours. Serve with hot chocolate sauce.

Chocolate Cream Pie.—Melt two squares of chocolate or half a cup of cocoa; add a half cup of sugar, a fourth of a cup of cornstarch, three yolks, a little salt and two cups of milk. Cook in a double boiler until thick, stirring constantly; flavor with vanilla. Pour into a baked pastry shell and cover with a meringue made from two eggs and two tablespoons of sugar; brown in the oven and serve cold.

Delicious little wafers to serve with afternoon tea are prepared by placing a chocolate cream on a round wafer, then set in a hot oven to melt the candy and toast the cracker.

A cup of hot cocoa with a marshmallow floating in it delights the heart of a child.

Fudge.—Two cups of sugar, three fourths of a cup of milk, one tablespoonful of butter, two squares of chocolate. Cook to the soft ball stage, add vanilla and salt.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

MOLLY & CO. SETTLE AN IMPORTANT QUESTION.
THE OLD question as to whether engaged people should have anything to do with any member of the opposite sex other than their fiancées, has again come to the surface in my correspondence.

Now I have done my best before to settle this matter out of my own wisdom, and my settlement has evidently been unsatisfactory, so this time I referred the matter to the Council. The authorities who were the first to pass on the question. "Why, of course not," she said promptly and decisively. "It isn't the thing at all."

Apparently, she thought that entirely settled the matter, for she looked quite surprised when the man-who-thinks began to speak.

Said the man-who-thinks meditatively, "It's foolish to try to give any general answer to a question like that. That's a thing each couple ought to settle for themselves. It seems to me that the best test for any engaged man or girl, is to put himself or herself in the other's place. If a girl wants to entertain one of her old friends on an evening when 'himself' can't come, she ought to ask herself if she would be willing to have her fiancé take one of the girls he used to like to the theatre on a night when she couldn't go with him. And if she honestly thinks she would be willing, why then she should ask the same privilege."

"Don't you think," said the lady-who-always-knows somewhat gently, "that the very best test would be to abide by the other's feelings? If the other party has the slightest feeling about a thing like that, no matter how unreasonable the feeling may seem to you, oughtn't you to give up, if you really love him? Jealousy hurts terribly, you know, and it seems to me that anyone who really cared would give up a good deal rather than inflict it."

"I'll tell you what I think," said Molly, the little stenographer lady, "it all depends on how much you want to see other people."

"Humph!" interrupted the want-to-be-cynic, "that's just like you, Molly. I say that's the very last thing to go by."

"I was going to say," went on Molly serenely, "when I was interrupted, that if you don't care anything about seeing the person in question, you should see him all you want. But if you do care, you shouldn't see him at all."

The want-to-be-cynic's expression reminded one of a sleep that has suddenly tucked and lost the wind.

"I reckon," said the man-who-thinks, "that the only safe thing you can say, Ruth is, 'It all depends.' Of course, anyone ought to be square and kind about it, and try to put himself in the other fellow's place, but beyond that, it just depends on circumstances."

On the whole, I think that's a pretty good summing up of the case. Don't you?

When you deary the extravagance that beset this highly organized civilization of ours, do you remember to include the extravagance of license which the law allows?

Questioning, in the suit for slander which Miss Esther Mercey has just won against Dean Marion Talbot, of the University of Chicago, were such glaring examples of the extravagance of license that Legislator John Griffin has decided to introduce a bill to curtail at least one in Illinois.

His bill will not aim to stop all the scurrilous questions, having no bearing on a case that attorneys ask to anger or befuddle witnesses. For instance, Dean Talbot's attorney kept putting to Miss Mercey such questions as, "In July, 1910, did you have anyone investigate whether Mr. Reynolds (her fiancé) would be worth $100,000 upon his mother's death?" and others even more disagreeable.

The custom is common. A short time ago, in New York, a lawyer asked a character-dancing question of a witness called to testify on a minor point in a case. The outraged witness promptly promised his testimony on the hearing he deserved and immediately after court kept his promise.

Representative Griffin's bill will be a law with a provision against a general license that the Mercey case showed to be objectionable.

"How old are you?" This question was shot at each woman witness, most of them teachers.

"Was humiliating to some, no doubt," said Representative Griffin. "There are persons, good reasons, why women should be protected in this matter. The answer, 'I am of legal age' should be enough."

Here our civilization is again responsible. The only reason that a woman's age should matter in the least is because of the popular attitude.

In the cave days, the only persons allowed a voice in tribal councils were the men who could fight, and the women who had borne children. Today the first two questions asked about a woman, whether she be a national power or a stage diva, are, "Is she young?" "Is she pretty?"

Male Friendships. Remarks have been made lately as regards the apparent decline of close personal friendships between men. Perhaps something in our busy modern life accounts for our lower note in masculine friendships. Perhaps, too, much that belonged to interchanges between man and man is now possible between woman and man, as equals.—Light.

The Eternal Feminine. A man has a better idea of the measure of eternity after he has seen two women engaged in saying good-by.—Atchison Globe.

Heart and Home Problems

by MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am sure most essential. (2) Yes, it is to be a June bride. Will you please tell me of what my trousseau should consist? (3) Does the bridegroom provide the flowers for the bride's party? What flowers would you suggest for a June bride? (4) What is the customary engraving on a wedding ring?

(1) The bride-to-be usually begins on her underclothes, making four to six sets. She will want to provide as many thin white waists; two or three tailored waists; a chiffon or voile evening waist; one or two pretty gowns, of voile or silk, or cashmere; one or two dresses of dimity, organdy or lawn, and a simple white dress. A traveling suit of dark blue serge, or a gray or tan mannish cloth; a white plique skirt; a tan coat to wear with the light dresses; a shirt waist or traveling hat; a dress hat; a dainty negligee of pink or blue silk trimmed in lace or voile; and a practical kimono; vests, stockings, ox-fords, and handkerchiefs. It is a formidable list, but it is a list that will make a bride who can have her trousseau complete. I have given almost everything a girl would need, and of these you can choose what to you willow plumes be worn again this year? (2) What will be the prevailing colors worn in dresses this summer? (3) Is there a variety of roses which will bloom the same year they are set out?

(1) Willow plumes will be good this year, but not quite as popular as some of the novelty ostrich feathers. (2) Lavenders, pinks, blues, whites, and flowered materials are colors of the season. (3) Most all the Hybrid Perpetuals if set out about this time of the year will bloom during the season.

DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN Food Specialist

DIET AND CHARACTER.

"Character, talents, and virtues are powerfully affected by beef, mutton, pie crust, and soup," wrote Sydney Smith to Arthur Kingslake. "I could feed or starve men into many virtues and vices, and affect them more powerfully with instruments of cookery than Timotheus could do formerly with his lyre. Frequently it is," he continues, "that those persons whom God hath joined together in matrimony, ill-cooked joints and badly boiled potatoes have put asunder." Heredity has an important influence upon character, as education has, but the influence of diet upon heredity and upon character has not been fully realized.

E. M. Markham, 521 W. Mill St., Winona, Minn., was cured of a severe case of kidney trouble and says: "My kidney action was too frequent, and I lost much sleep by it. Mother: Watch The Children's Bowels.

IF CROSS, SICK, FEVERISH, BILIOUS OR TONGUE IS COATED GIVE DELICIOUS "SYRUP OF FIGS."

No matter what ails your child, a gentle, thorough laxative should always be the first treatment given. If your child has feeding well; resting nicely; eating regularly and not being naturally ill, a sure sign that it's little stomach, liver and bowels are filled with food constipated waste matter and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or your little one has stomach-aches, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, tongue coated; give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs and in a few hours all the clogged up waste, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of its little bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you will surely have a well, happy and smiling child again shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children, being composed entirely of laxative figs, senna and aromatics it cannot be harmful, besides they dearly love its delicious fig taste.

Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regulator needed—a little given today will save a sick child tomorrow.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggists for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious, reliable old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

The Wreck of the Titan

By Morgan Robertson

"Oh, no, captain," she exclaimed, "I cannot feel safe while he is at liberty. Of course I will testify."

"Whatever you do, captain," said the husband savagely, "rest assured that I shall put a bullet through his head if he meddles with me or mine again. Then you can put me in irons."

"I will see that he is attended to, colonel," replied the captain as he bowed them out of his office.

But as a murder charge is not always the best way to discredit a man and as the captain did not believe that the man who had defied him would murder a child and as the charge would be difficult to prove in any case and would cause him much trouble and annoyance, he did not order the arrest of John Rowland, but merely directed that for the time he should be kept at work by day in the "tween deck out of sight of the passengers."

Rowland, surprised at his sudden transfer from the disagreeable scrubbing to a "soldier's job" of painting life buoys in the "tween deck, was shrewd enough to know that he was being closely watched by the boatwain that morning, but not shrewd enough to affect any symptoms of intoxication or drugging, which might have satisfied his anxious superiors and brought him more whisky. As a result of his brighter eyes and steeper voice—due to the curative air—when he turned out for the first dog watch on deck at 4 o'clock the captain and boatwain held an interview in the chart room, in which the former said: "Do not be alarmed. It is not poison. He is halfway into the horrors now, and this will merely there."

Rowland grumbled, as sailors may when aggrieved, and obeyed. The man who had reported his name and disappeared, the first officer sauntered down the bridge, uttered the official "Keep a good lookout!" and returned to his post; then the silence and loneliness of a night watch at sea, intensified by the never ceasing hum of the engines and relieved only by the sounds of distant music and laughter from the theater, descended on the forward part of the ship, for the fresh westerly wind coming with the Titan made nearly a calm on her deck, and the dense fog, though overcast by a bright star speckled sky, was so chilly that the last talkative passenger had fled to the light and life within.

When three bells—0:30—had sounded and Rowland had given in his turn the required call, "All's well!" the first officer left his post and approached him. "Rowland," he said as he drew near, "I hear you've walked the quarter-deck."

"I cannot imagine how you learned it, sir," replied Rowland. "I am not in the habit of referring to it."

"You told the captain, I suppose the curriculum is as complete at Annapolis as at the Royal Naval college. What do you think of Maury's theories of currents?"

"They seem plausible," said Rowland, unconsciously dropping the "sir."

"But I think that in most particulars he has been proved wrong."

"Yes, I think so myself. Did you ever follow up another idea of his—that of locating the position of ice in a fog by the rate of decrease in temperature an approach?"

"Not to any definite result. But it seems to be only a matter of calculation and time to calculate. Cold is negative heat and can be treated like radiant energy, decreasing as the square of the distance."

The officer stood a moment looking ahead and humming a tune to himself, then, saying, "Yes; that's so," returned to his place.

"Must have a cast iron stomach," he muttered as he peered into the binoculars, "or else the boatwain doped the wrong man's pot."

Rowland glanced after the retreating officer with a cynical smile. "I wonder," he said to himself, "why he comes down here talking navigation to a fortune hunter. Why am I up here—out of my turn? Is this something in line with that bottle?" He resumed the short pacing back and forth on the end of the bridge, and the rather gloomy train of thought which the officer had interrupted.

"How long," he mused, "would his ambition and love of profession last him after he had met and won and lost the only woman on earth to him? Why is it that failure to hold the affections of one among the millions of women who live and love can outweigh every blessing in life and turn a man's nature into a hell to consume him? Who did she marry? Some one, probably a stranger, long after my banishment, who came to her possessed of a few quitters of mind or physique that pleased her, who did not need to love her—his chances were better without that—and he steps coolly and easily into my heaven. And they tell us that 'God doeth all things well' and that there is a heaven where all our unmet wants are attended to—provided we have the necessary faith in it. That means, if it means anything, that after a lifetime of unrecognized allegiance, during which I win nothing but her four and contempt, I may be rewarded by the love and companionship of her soul. Do I love her soul? Has her soul beauty of face and the figure and carriage of a Venus? Has her soul deep blue eyes and a sweet, musical voice? Has it wit and grace and charm? Has it a wealth of pity for suffering? These are the things I loved. I do not love her soul, if she has one. I do not want it. I want her—I need her." He stopped in his walk and leaned against the bridge railing, with eyes fixed on the fog ahead. He was speaking his thoughts aloud now, and the first officer drew within hearing, listened a moment and went back. "Working on him," he whispered to the third officer. Then he pushed the button which called the captain, blew a short blast of the steam whistle as a call to the boatwain and resumed his watch on the drugged lookout, while the third officer coned the ship.

The steam call to the boatwain is so common a sound on a steamship as to generally pass unnoticed. This call affected another besides the boatwain. A little nightgown figure arose from an underberth in a saloon stateroom and, with wide open, staring eyes, groped its way to two deck unobserved by the watchman. The white, bare little feet felt no cold as they pattered the planks of the deserted promenade, and the little figure had reached the stateroom entrance by the time the captain and boatwain had reached the bridge.

"And they talk," went on Rowland as the three watched and listened, "of the wonderful love and cure of a merciful God, who controls all things, who has given me my defects and my capacity for loving and then placed mercy to me in this? As part of a great evolutionary principle, which develops the race life at the expense of the individual, it might be consistent with the idea of a God—a first cause. But does the individual who perishes, because unfitted to survive, owe any love or gratitude to this God? He does not! On the supposition that he exists, I deny it! And on the complete lack of evidence that he does exist, I affirm to myself the integrity of cause and effect, which is enough to explain the universe and me. A merciful God—a kind, loving, just and merciful God?" He burst into a fit of incongruous laughter, which stopped short as he clapped his hands to his stomach and then to his head. "What all this?" he gasped. "I feel as though I had swallowed hot coals—and my head—and my eyes—I can't see." The pain left him in a moment, and the laughter returned. "What's wrong with the starboard anchor? It's moving. It's changing. It's a—what? What on earth is it? On end—and the windlass—and the spare anchors—and the davits—all alive—all moving."

The sight he saw would have been horrible to a healthy mind, but it only moved this man to increased and unaccountable merriment. The two rails before him leading to the stem had risen before him in a shadowy triangle, and within it were the deck fittings he had mentioned. The windlass had become a thing of horror, black and forbidding. The two end barrels were the bulging, lightless eyes of a nondescript monster, for which the cable chains had multiplied themselves into innumerable legs and tentacles. And this thing was crawling around within the triangle. The anchor davits were many headed serpents which danced on their tails, and the anchors themselves writhed and squirmed in the shape of immense hairy caterpillars, while faces appeared on the two white lantern towers, grinning and leering at him. With his hands on the bridge rail and streaming down his face, he laughed at the strange sight, but did not speak and the three, who had quietly approached, drew back to await, while below on the promenade deck the little white figure, as though attracted by his laughter, turned into the stairway leading to the upper deck.

The phantasmagoria faded to a blank wall of gray fog, and Rowland groped faintly to mutter, "They've drugged me," but in an instant he stood in the darkness of a garden, one that he had known. In the distance were the lights of a house, and close to him was a young girl, who turned from him and fled, even as he called to her.

By a supreme effort of will he brought himself back to the present, to the bridge he stood upon and to his duty. "Why must it haunt me through the years," he groaned, "drunk then, drunk since? She could have saved me, but she chose to damn me." He strove to piece up and down, but staggered and clung to the rail, while the three watchers approached again, and the little white figure below climbed the upper bridge steps.

"The survival of the fittest," he rambled as he stared into the fog—"cause and effect. It explains the universe—and me." He lifted his hand and spoke loudly, as though to some unseen ruler of the deep. "What will be the last effect? Where in the scheme of ultimate balance, under the law of the correlation of energy, will my wasted wealth of love be gathered and weighed and credited? What will balance it, and where will I be? Myra, Myra," he called, "do you know what

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

SKEDADDLERS FROM NEW ENGLAND.

By A. W. MACY.

The war of 1812 between the United States and Great Britain was very unpopular in New England. So serious was the opposition that for a time it threatened to break up the Union. There were several reasons for this. In the first place, the New Englanders were still chafing over the defeat of John Adams for a second term of the presidency, in 1800. Then they did not approve of the Louisiana purchase, which meant the addition of more slave territory to the United States. And finally, they were bitter against the Embargo Act, which interfered greatly with their shipping interests. The national government had to resort to conscription to fill the quotas of soldiers required of the New England States. This was very distasteful to the citizens, and to escape the draft hundreds of them slipped across the line into Canada. A large percentage of these never returned. Many of the present inhabitants of the region lying south of the St. Lawrence and between the Chaudiere and Richelieu rivers are descendants of these New England skeddaddlers from the draft.

The Little White Figure Stood at His Feet.

You have lost? Do you know, in your goodness and purity and truth, of what you have done? Do you know?"

The fabric on which he stood was gone, and he seemed to be poised on nothing in a worldless universe of gray—alone. And in the vast, limitless emptiness there was no sound or life or change and in his heart neither fear nor wonder nor emotion of any kind save one, the unquenched hunger of a love that had failed. Yet it seemed that he was not John Rowland, but some one or something else, for presently he saw himself far away, millions of billions of miles, as though on the outermost fringes of the void, and heard his own voice calling. Faintly, yet distinctly, filled with the concentrated despair of his life, came the call, "Myra, Myra."

There was an answering call, and, looking for the second voice, he beheld her—the woman of his love—on the opposite edge of space, and her eyes held the tenderness and her voice held the pleading that he had known but in dreams. "Come back," she called. "Come back to me!" But it seemed that the two could not understand, for again he heard the despairing cry, "Myra, Myra, where are you?" and again the answer, "Come back! Come."

Then in the far distance to the right appeared a faint point of flame, which grew larger. It was approaching, and he was disappointedly viewed it, and when he looked again for the two they were gone, and in their places were two clouds of nebula, which resolved into myriad points of sparkling light and color—whirling, encircling, until they filled all space. And through them the larger light was coming—and growing larger—straight for him.

Many Good Things of Life.

When we look into the long avenue of the future and see the good there in for each one of us to do, we realize after all what a beautiful thing it is to work, and to live, and be happy.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

SUFFERED EVERYTHING

For Fourteen Years. Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Elgin, Ill.—"After fourteen years of suffering everything from female complaints, I am at last restored to health."

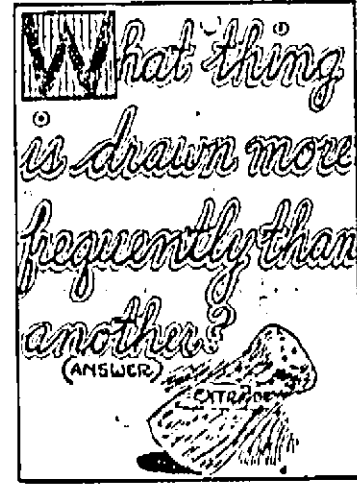

"I employed the best doctors and even went to the hospital for treatment and was told there was no help for me. But while taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I began to improve and I continued its use until I was made well."

—Mrs. HENRY LEISEBERG, 733 Adams St., Kearneyville, W. Va.—"I feel it my duty to write and say what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I suffered from female weakness and at times felt so miserable I could hardly endure being on my feet. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and following your special directions, my trouble is gone. Words fail to express my thankfulness. I recommend your medicine to all my friends."—Mrs. G. B. WHITTINGTON.

The above are only two of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which show clearly what great things Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound does for those who suffer from woman's ills.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

TODAY'S RIDDLE

A stubborn cough that hangs on weakens the system and may easily develop a dangerous condition of the lungs. Earl Fair, Waukesha, Wis., says: "My stubborn cough refused to respond to ordinary treatment and I finally resorted to the old reliable, Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, and less than two bottles effected a complete cure." Badger Drug Co.

BRONCHITIS

To Whom It May Concern: Bluevale, Ont., May 4, 1910—"I was sick for two years with chronic bronchitis and a consequent run-down condition. I received no benefit from doctors or from a trip which I took for my health, and I had to give up work. Vinol was recommended, and from the second bottle I commenced to improve. I gained in weight and strength, my bronchial trouble disappeared, and I am at work again.

It is the combined action of the curative elements of the code's livers, aided by the blood-making and strength-creating properties of tonic iron contained in Vinol which makes it so successful in curing bronchitis. Vinol is a constitutional remedy for chronic coughs, colds, bronchitis and pulmonary troubles—not a palliative like cough syrups.

Try Vinol. If you don't think it helps you, we will return your money. Smith Drug Co., Janesville, Wis.

Why We Say "Red Letter Days" The phrase "red letter day," which means a day that stands out in our life as a happy and delightful one, originated several hundred years ago. In almanacs, saints' days and holidays used to be printed in red ink to mark them off from other days. From this custom came the expression.

F. H. Welles, 1006 Forest St., Racine Wis., had an acute attack of kidney trouble and knew at once what would cure him. He says: "My back ached and I was miserable, but I took Foley Kidney Pills and in a few days' time my back was better. Now I am cured and have had no return of the trouble." Foley Kidney Pills did it! Badger Drug Co.

bring them on. He will see snakes, ghosts, goblins, shipwrecks, fire and all sorts of things. It works in two or three hours. Just drop it into his drinking pot while the port forecath is empty."

There was a light in the port forecath to which Rowland belonged—at supper time, which need not be described beyond mention of the fact that Rowland, who was not a particular fan of tea, dashed from his hand before he had taken three swallows. He procured a fresh supply and finished his supper, then, taking no part in his watch mates' open discussion of the light and guarded discussion of collisions, rolled into his bunk and smoked until eight bells, when he turned out with the rest.

"Rowland," said the big boatwain as the watch mustered on deck, "take the starboard bridge lookout."

"It is not my trick, boatwain," said Rowland in surprise.

C. M. & ST. P. ROAD CLOSES IMPORTANT DEAL IN THE WEST

Deals Have Been Closed Whereby
Milwaukee Road Gets Freight Service of U. P. and Will Run Through Trains
Over Line.

A series of railroad deals of vast importance to Janesville and its railroad connections have developed so rapidly in the last few weeks that it is now possible to announce the following important railroad developments involving Milwaukee, Chicago and this city and the entire systems of the Milwaukee and North-Western railroads. There are these developments briefly:

The Milwaukee road, by a new alliance with the Union Pacific system, will handle the Union Pacific's freight from Omaha to the east.

This contract, it is understood, is an exclusive contract between the Milwaukee and Union Pacific systems and deprives the North-Western lines of the exclusive contract which that system had previously held with the Union Pacific for its Chicago-Omaha business.

The Milwaukee road acquires equal rights with the North-Western to run its own through trains from Chicago to San Francisco over the Union Pacific line.

The coaches for these Milwaukee-Union Pacific trains have been built at the Milwaukee shops of the Milwaukee road.

Alliance Is Developed.

The development of the close alliance above outlined between the Milwaukee and Union Pacific railroads is either responsible for or caused by the recent close traffic agreement between the Northern Pacific and the North-Western systems. It is not clear here whether the Union Pacific company made its new traffic agreement with the Milwaukee as a result of the North-Western's alliance with the Illinois Pacific rival of the Harriman system, or whether the North-Western system closed with the Illinois line after being deprived of the Union Pacific freight contract.

The first result of the new deal will be the double tracking of the Milwaukee road from Omaha to the east, and it is reported, the construction of a short line route to shorten the distance in some parts of the Milwaukee system.

Reports are current that the North-Western official circles are in a turmoil as a result of the change in traffic conditions and that President Gardner's status is somewhat in doubt as a result of the change in traffic agreements. If this is true it would appear that the Milwaukee system was the winner in the battle of wits.

The North-Western's new alliance with the Northern Pacific is believed to mean the beginning of a transcontinental system with the Illinois lines from St. Paul west to the western end and the North-Western as a connecting link between the Illinois interests and the Vanderbilt or New York Central system in the section east of Chicago.

May Halt Extension.

The North-Western's alliance with the Northern Pacific apparently obviates the necessity of the immediate building of the proposed North-Western extension to the Pacific coast, which was projected as a counter traffic move to the Milwaukee road's extension.

The immense cost of the Milwaukee road's extension has, it is said, somewhat discouraged those North-Western interests who were at first enthusiastic for a more southern route to the coast, with a projected terminal at Portland.

Milwaukee is affected in several ways by the new conditions. The North-Western's alliance with the Northern Pacific has resulted in the running of the Northern Pacific's north coast limited train into Chicago through Milwaukee, over the North-Western tracks from St. Paul via the new North-Western short line across Wisconsin.

The above summary of traffic conditions in the northwest and west section has partly already been accomplished, like the North-Western's starting of the north coast limited into Chicago over the Milwaukee short line, while work on other phases of the situation, like the Milwaukee road's double track plans, is only a matter of time.

Hundred Years of Age.

Washington, D. C., May 7.—The 100th anniversary of the establishment of the general land office was celebrated with exercises this afternoon in Continental Memorial Hall, Secretary Fisher of the Interior Department presided and Frederick Bennett, commissioner of the land office was one of the speakers.

North Carolina Club Women.

Winston-Salem, N. C., May 17.—Winston-Salem is today teeming with women from all over North Carolina, who have come to participate in the annual convention of the State Federation of Women's Clubs. Today's program called for meetings of the state council and board of directors, followed by the formal opening of the gathering this evening. The meeting will conclude with the election of officers Friday.

Illinois Music Teachers.

Streator, Ill., May 7.—Music teachers from every quarter of Illinois gathered here today for the twenty-fourth annual convention of their state association. Four concerts and several recitals are to be given during the four days of the convention. The program has been arranged with the greatest care and the music of noted soloists are on the programme.

MONROE DOCTRINE FOR JAPS IF THEY TRY TO SECURE CONTROL OF MAGDALENA BAY

That the United States should enforce the Monroe Doctrine or formulate a new one if the Japanese attempt to secure control of territory about Magdalena Bay, is the opinion of Senators Lodge, Bacon and other members of the Senate. Japan continues to deny that she has purchased any Mexican territory, but that the contrary is true is the prevailing belief at Washington.

Texas Has Women Bankers.

San Antonio, Texas, May 7.—Many representative bankers and business men from all parts of the state, together with more than a score of women who are engaged in the banking business, met in this city today for the annual convention of the Texas Bankers' Association. The business sessions will continue until Thursday and will be devoted to the discussion of a wide range of topics relating to banking and finance.

MILDRED DOTY SCORED PRONOUNCED SUCCESS

Talented Janesville Young Lady

Ovation at Myers Theatre
Last Evening.

David Belasco never scored as pronounced a success in the first production of any of his many plays as did the company of young people, headed by Miss Mildred Doty of this city, composing the Bush Temple Dramatic Company of Chicago, which appeared in "Drifting" at the Myers theatre last evening. Almost every seat in the house was occupied and Miss Doty who took the leading part in the vehicle of the evening, was the recipient of numerous curtain calls and showered with handsome bouquets of beautiful flowers at the conclusion of each act.

Miss Doty is a daughter of Mrs. Mary Doty and a granddaughter of Mrs. Mary J. Lippitt of 404 St. Lawrence avenue and Mrs. Abigail Doty of 201 Jackson street. She graduated from the Janesville High School two years ago, taking part in the chess play at that time and showing such decided talent for stage work that last autumn she went to Chicago to study for a stage career at the Bush Temple conservatory under the direction of Edward Dwyer. Her early training was under the instruction of Mrs. Janet B. Day of this city.

Miss Doty, and the supporting company are all students at the dramatic school and filled with the ambition for success in stage work. The appearance of the company in Janesville was due to the fact that Miss Doty had the leading part on the play chosen and this was her home city. Mr. Dwyer staged the play. There was but one stage setting for the four acts which were beautified by handsome floral decorations furnished by Amarpol and the stage furnishings by Charles Putnam.

"Drifting" is a society play with a moral. The husband drifts away from his beautiful home and wife in search of money but with the death of his child he is brought to a realization of the truth only to find his wife has drifted into other society. Of course it all ends happily but there is another love affair running through the four acts that adds interest.

An Helen Manton Miss Doty proved herself most capable at interpreting the lines and meeting the situations that arose. Ruth Norman as Mrs. Mary Manton proved most interesting as did Marvel Marks as Mrs. Dick Stanton, who had a decided comedy part well taken. Marie Graham made a most acceptable Buttrick. Otto Brown as Harold, played his part well showing carefully coached of the lines and excellent stage presence. Manton Marie as Gordon Manton, the drifting husband had a hard part to interpret. Arthur Hughes as Scott Grant, Earl Aronson as Dr. Fuller and James Barr as John, all took their parts well.

Those who saw Miss Doty two years ago in the graduating play of her class were pleased to note her great improvement. The work of the past year has demonstrated that she has a decided talent for dramatic work and that her stage presence, her clear enunciation of the lines and clever facial control, all give promise of a brilliant future for Janesville's latest recruit into the theatrical field.

Browning Centenary Kept.

London, May 7.—The one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Robert Browning, the famous poet, was celebrated by the Browning clubs and other literary societies throughout England today. In London the chief features of the celebrations were a service in Westminster Abbey this afternoon, followed by a dinner under the auspices of the Royal Society of Literature.

Poor Companions.

It is difficult to get self-confidence and an empty purse to travel together.

W. H. Wheatley, 4826 Wabash Ave., Oshkosh, Iowa, had a bad attack of kidney trouble that developed into rheumatism and intense suffering resulted. He says: "I heard of Foley's Kidney Pills and took them, and began to improve promptly. Now I am entirely cured and have no more rheumatism, thanks to Foley Kidney Pills." Badger Drug Co.

Over thirty different styles of trusses in stock. Any rupture fitted to your satisfaction or money refunded. Private rooms for fitting. Shoulder braces, crutches, suspensories, elastic stockings, surgical rubber goods. Badger Drug Co., Cor. Milwaukee and River Sts.

Bowels are Basis of Child Health

The careful mother, who watches closely the physical peculiarities of her children, will soon discover that the most important thing in connection with a child's constant good health is to keep the bowels regularly open. Sluggish bowels will be followed by loss of appetite, restlessness during the sleep, irritability and a dozen and one similar evidences of physical disorder.

At the first sign of such disorder give the child a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at night on retiring and repeat the dose the following night. If necessary—more than that will scarcely be needed. You will find that the child will recover its accustomed good spirits at once and will eat and sleep naturally.

This remedy is a vast improvement over salts, cathartics, laxative waters and similar things, which are altogether too powerful for a child. The homes of Mrs. Evelyn Matson, 516 Milwaukee St., Milwaukee, Wis., and Mrs. Kate Hawley, Waukesha, Wis., are always supplied with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and with them, as with thousands of others, there is no substitute for this grand laxative. It is really more than a laxative, for it contains superior tonic properties which help to tone and strengthen the stomach, liver and bowels so that after a brief use of it all laxatives can be dispensed with and nature will do its own work.

Anyone wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a large bottle (family size) can have a sample bottle sent to the home free of charge by simply addressing Dr. W. D. Caldwell, 405 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postal card will do.

STORAGE

We have a nice clean, dry warehouse and plenty of room for household goods, stoves, buggies and in fact, everything which anyone wishes to have stored.
